

Website Terms of Use

Agreement to terms

This website is made available by the Physiotherapy Board (we, our, us) on the terms set out below. The expressions you and your in this document refer to any person who accesses this website. By accessing or using this site, you agree to these terms of use and our privacy statement.

Changes

We may change our terms of use or our privacy statement at any time by publishing revised documents on this website. You accept that publication of a revised document on this website is sufficient notice to you and that by continuing to use this website after such publication you consent to such change.

Accuracy of your information

You must provide true and up-to-date information in all your communications with us, including when you set up an account. We recommend using a personal email address for your account that is unique to you to ensure ongoing access to this website and security of your personal information.

Account security - your responsibilities

If you register for an account to access certain services provided through this website, such as the practitioner dashboard, we will provide you with a username and password for this purpose. Your username and password are personal to you and you must not share them with others.

You must:

- keep your username and password confidential;
- protect and secure your username and password from unauthorised access and use; and
- safeguard your computing environment from unauthorised access, viruses and malicious software.

We may suspend or disable your username or password as we consider appropriate for security reasons or if you breach these terms.

Access to data and information

We authorise you to access data and information on our website solely by means of the links we make available on our website for that purpose. The use of scripts, software, tools, or other technical means to extract data or information from this website for any purpose is not authorised except with our prior written consent for a specific purpose approved by the Physiotherapy Board.

Content

Your content

You must not attempt to modify, add or upload content to this site without our prior written authorisation in each case. We authorise physiotherapists to supply content via this site for the purpose of completing their applications for Annual Practising Certificates and applications for Non-Practising Status. If you supply content to us, you must ensure that you have all the rights required to supply that content and that our use of that content in accordance with our lawful functions will not:

- breach any laws or legally binding codes;
- infringe any intellectual property rights or other legal rights or moral rights of any person; or
- give rise to any legal cause of action against us or any third party.

You grant us a non-exclusive, perpetual and irrevocable licence to store, copy, reformat, and otherwise use that content for the purposes of performing our lawful functions.

Our content and your use of it

Unless otherwise indicated, we or our licensors own the intellectual property rights that subsist in this site and the content available on this site. You may not use our intellectual property rights or content unless authorised to do so under these terms or by us in writing.

Our content is made available under the terms of a Creative Commons Attribution–Non Commercial (CC BY-NC 4.0) licence. Subject to the conditions below, you may reproduce our material in any format or media solely for your personal, non-commercial use, free of charge, without obtaining our specific permission to do so, as long as you attribute the ownership of our material to the Physiotherapy Board and do not remove any copyright notices from that material. You must not alter, use, or distribute any material in a misleading manner.

You must not use the material on our website for commercial purposes. If you wish to publish or repurpose material from our publications or website for commercial use, you must get our prior written permission to do so.

The above licence does not apply to the website's design elements or to the use of any organisation's trade marks or designs. Those elements must not be reproduced or used without our prior written consent.

Please contact our communications department with all requests for authorisations or permissions relating to our material. You can do this by emailing us at physio@physioboard.org.nz.

Third party content

Where we identify that a third party owns the copyright in material published on our website, you must not alter, use or distribute that material or do any other act that may infringe that third party's intellectual property rights in that material without their express permission. We cannot grant that permission.

The Physiotherapy Board does not necessarily endorse views or opinions expressed on the website, and their publication on the website is not an endorsement of any kind.

The website may provide links to other information from external sources that are not part of the Physiotherapy Board when we think you may be interested in the information they offer. We do not necessarily endorse those websites or their content, and we have no control over the companies or organisations that operate those websites or provide that content. The Physiotherapy Board therefore bears no responsibility for the accuracy of this information.

Disclaimer

Although we make reasonable efforts to ensure all material published on our website is reliable and accurate at the time of publication, we cannot accept any liability for its accuracy or content. Use of our website or the information on our website is at your own risk.

Changes to the website

We may change, suspend or discontinue any aspect of the website at any time, including any service or content offered by or through this website.

Feedback

We value your comments and opinions. If you have comments, questions or complaints about any of our services or website policies please contact us.
